ARTIST STATEMENT

As an artist, Predock works on the interchange between art and architecture. His art practice serves to illuminate questions surrounding architecture from outside of the medium and discipline, generating new understandings and liveliness through art making. Engaging the periphery of what helps to constitute architecture and architectural practices, Predock works through painting, objects and spatial environments to reveal and enhance the more peripheral subjects of architecture. This work includes subjects of digital representation, architectural props like figures, furniture and landscape, suppressed subjects such as clients and collaborators, weathering/entropy, specifications/instructions and self-reflection on his own architecture practice. Purposefully engaging tropes of representation from painting, architecture and digital culture, Predock's work seeks out new vitality for architectural subjects while energizing the space between art and architecture, and the digital and analog. Through the translation of architectural subjects into paintings, objects and immersive installations, new proximities are made between architecture and art.
